Four Seasons (poem)

Four Seasons

Spring

The fields are rich with daffodils,
A coat of clover cloaks the hills,
And I must dance, and I must sing
To see the beauty of the spring.

Summer

The earth is warm, the sun's ablaze,
It is a time of carefree days;
And bees about that chance to pass
May see me snoozing in the grass.

Fall

The leaves are yellow, red, and brown,
A shower sprinkles softly down;
The air is fragrant, crisp, and cool,
And once again I'm stuck in school.

Winter

The birds are gone, the world is white,
The winds are wild, they chill and bite;
The ground is thick with slush and sleet,
And I can barely feel my feet.

The last is done, the next is here,
The same as it is every year;
Spring -- then sunshine -- autumn -- snow
That is how each year must go.

Winter Wonderland (Poem)

Winter Wonderland

Crisp and frosty, my feet sink down deep,
As the white fluff comes down in
A crunch and a slip as I tread my way,
Let the winter fun begin!

Trucks hang from the building above,
Shining and glinting like glass.
Happy children and one from in town,
Reflecting the sun in a pose.

Robins and pheasants in a snowy court,
Head peck on a robin's beak by
A flurry of snow hats the garden below,
As the robin looks on from up high.

Snow starts to float through
The letter gray sky,
A hush on the hills, then fall
Hunting for chance for a bettering chance,
In a splendor of shape big and small.

I look to the river that's frozen on top,
The slipping ice steps the floor
A crunch and a crash on the children on bank,
Send a warning of danger before.

The laughter of children is soft in the air
As snowflakes exchange between friends.
A moment to make a secret to hold,
And a wish that the fun never ends.

My nose is never red, my fingers are numb,
Jack Frost has been covering his cold
So warm's a good word, to my warm cozy bed
And the fun, a night to behold.

Daffodils (poem)

Daffodils

by William Wordsworth

I wandered lonely as a cloud
That floats on high o'er vales and hills,
When all at once I saw a crowd,
A host, of golden daffodils;
Beside the lake, beneath the trees,
Fluttering and dancing in the breeze.

Continuous as the stars that shine
And twinkle on the milky way,
They stretched in never-ending line
Along the margin of a bay:
Ten thousand saw I at a glance,
Tossing their heads in sprightly dance.

The waves beside them danced, but they
Out-did the sparkling waves in glee:
A poet could not but be gay,
In such a jocund company:
I gazed—and gazed—but little thought
What wealth the show to me had brought:

For oft, when on my couch I lie
In vacant or in pensive mood,
They flash upon that inward eye
Which is the bliss of solitude;
And then my heart with pleasure fills,
And dances with the daffodils.
